Oliver Baer ' s exhibit shows the contrast between the model in a photoshoot and the model in a natural state, with vibrant contrasts in colour in exploring facade and personality. What is most striking is the contrast of how the models look on the flip side of the two boards.

Barbara Sigg shows how the heritage of one ' s family can influence the work of a photographer. Coming from a long line of photographers, the artist adds to her work by making them in the style of an old photography shoot. Not only showing where photography is today with the sharp quality and colour, but its roots in the borders of old film.
